Project Title: Civically Engaged Organizations (CEOs)

Submitted by: Connecticut Secretary of the State Stephanie Thomas

Project Lead: Arienne Orozco, Director of Outreach and Engagement

Questions / Follow-up Contact: Arienne Orozco, Arienne.Orozco@ct.gov, 860.422.0845

General Subject Areas: Business Services and Elections

Project Description: As the keeper of the state's business registry and as the administrator of Connecticut elections, the office of the Connecticut Secretary of the State has married two segments of its agency: Business Services and Elections. Many Connecticut businesses are civic-minded and working with their communities in various ways, whether funding a community sports team or art project, or volunteering with a local non-profit organization. However, businesses tend to underestimate and downplay the amount of influence they can and do have in their communities. The Secretary of the State's CEO program highlights this influence that businesses have, and further empowers them by providing a toolkit of trusted educational resources they can easily download and post, email, or print as needed to inform clients, staff, colleagues, and community members.

Office of the Connecticut Secretary of the State

Executive Summary

History

Two main functions of the Connecticut Office of the Secretary of the State are holding the business registry and overseeing the administration of elections. Secretary Thomas sought to marry these two divisions of the agency in an effort to highlight the good community work Connecticut businesses were already doing, empower them to play an even greater role in their communities, and leverage businesses as trusted voices to disseminate important voter education and civics messages from the Secretary's office.

When Secretary Thomas took office, the state budget had already been finalized, leaving zero dollars allocated for public outreach and education. Given the traditionally low voter turnout in municipal election years and the impending adoption of early voting in 2024, this presented a significant challenge. And it was evident that money would not be appropriated to promote early voting or educate voters on how it would work and that it's a safe, secure way to vote. Secretary Thomas had already been meeting with non-profits, colleges and universities, community groups, and leaders, and realized she had another large group at her fingertips by holding Connecticut's business registry.

The office developed the Civically Engaged Organizations (CEO) program which is geared toward any business, nonprofit, educational institution, or religious entity that is willing to take a pledge to promote civic engagement. CEOs commit to emailing and/or posting the Secretary of the State's nonpartisan materials to staff, clients, colleagues, and/or other communities. After joining the CEO program, organizations receive monthly email newsletters highlighting important election-related dates, deadlines, and key civic holidays for the upcoming month. Participants also gain access to a comprehensive, regularly updated toolkit containing social media graphics, sample posts, documents, and videos. These resources are designed to be easily downloadable, allowing organizations to share them with their communities through printing, email, or social media. The Secretary's office tailors these materials each month to align with and amplify core civic messages. Each month, the CEO email newsletter boasts an open rate between 65% and 79%!

The office designed a logo for the program as a "badge" that CEOs could upload onto their website and paste into their email signature to be branded as a CEO. The office also created a CEO certificate that CEOs could download, print out, and display in offices. Further, the office created several announcement social media graphics CEOs could download and post stating that they had joined the CEO program and were committed to promoting civic engagement in Connecticut.

The Secretary's office created printed and online sign-up forms which list various reasons organizations should consider joining the CEO program. By highlighting these perks, organizations understood that the Secretary's office was offering a true win-win opportunity. These reasons include:

- assisting in the recruitment of young employees who are shown to care about companies' civic health
- boosting employee morale by showing employees the organization cares about their lives outside the workplace
- building partnerships in the community
- providing marketing opportunities and positive media attention for the organization
- bringing people together regardless of political party affiliations
- improving the community around them

Significance

The CEO program is a great example of how state government can work smarter, not harder. By combining replicability, no-cost implementation, and public/private collaboration, it is a practical and impactful solution that could be adopted by communities everywhere. The program has the added benefit of empowering everyday people to take charge of improving their own lives and neighborhoods. With free, open-source tools available on the CEO resource page, any community can tap into these resources to create meaningful change.

The Civically Engaged Organization program is:

1. Easy to Replicate:

- One of the program's best features is how easily it can be copied and adapted by all communities - from small towns to big cities, regardless of demographic factors.
- The program is customizable for any audience and CEOs can use the program and its resources in a manner that works best for their community.
- All materials are ready to use, making it easy for CEOs to hit the ground running for immediate impact in their communities.

2. Low-Cost, High-Impact

Budgets can be tight, but this program proves that making a difference doesn't have to break the bank. Its low-cost approach ensures that even communities with limited funds can take part.

- The program is Internet based so no software or licenses are needed. However, all materials are created to be shareable so CEOs may choose to print materials to share with their audiences.
- The program largely utilizes materials and resources already in use by the Office of the Secretary of the State such as social media posts and its CRM system. This limits the cost of the program for the office.

3. Combines the Best Aspects of a Public/Private Partnership

- CEO members bring fresh ideas that are unique to sub-segments of the population, while the office of the Secretary of the State provides the expertise and the structure to make things happen.
- By working together, the office is more effective than if it would be if working alone.
- CEOs are invited to share feedback, helping to refine and improve the program for everyone's benefit.
- Virtual convenings were added in 2024 to allow CEOs an opportunity to build community, share their stories and successes, and tackle enduring issues around civic education.

4. Fosters Greater Civic Engagement

- A representative democracy works best when all voices make themselves heard 365 days a year. The CEO program encourages organizations to use their voice to strengthen the social fabric of the community.
- In turn, civic engagement helps residents feel more connected and empowered.
- The program makes a point of including all voices, helping to ensure that everyone has a say in shaping their community's future.

Impact / Results

The office of the Connecticut Secretary of the State has historically interacted with businesses in a transactional way, assisting entrepreneurs as they started their businesses and helping business owners file annual reports. The CEO program deepened the relationship the agency has with the business community by supporting them in a completely new and different way. It introduced businesses to the "other" side of the agency (elections) and enlightened them to the idea that they have power and influence in their communities.

The CEO program now boasts 255 members across the state. Organizations range from a small barbershop to the United Way to The Connecticut Sun WNBA team. This program has been a game-changer in helping state government work better, especially when it comes to communication, collaboration, and making the most of limited resources. Financially, it stretches the budget of the Office of the Secretary of the State by helping deliver important messages to the community that we couldn't otherwise afford. By partnering with other organizations and using cost-effective tools like digital outreach, we've been able to expand our reach without breaking the bank.

After finding success in the for-profit and non-profit sectors, government agencies and municipalities learned about the program and requested to join. There are now 10 towns and/or government departments signed up as CEOs, committed to promoting civic messages.

Administratively, it's a big help for our small team and strengthens teamwork across different government agencies. With limited staff, the program creates easy, "plug-and-play" resources that CEOs can use right away. This saves time, reduces duplication of effort, and ensures everyone is sharing consistent and clear information.

From the resident's perspective, the program makes an even bigger impact. Instead of only hearing from the government, people get key messages from trusted sources they already rely on, like community organizations and local leaders. This builds trust and makes it easier for important messages—like election updates or public service announcements—to cut through the noise.

In short, this program helps stretch resources, strengthen partnerships, and deliver messages in ways that truly connect with residents—all while making government work smarter.

BECOME A CEO!

If you already practice civic education and engagement, or want to, you can become a Civically Engaged Organization (CEO) by agreeing to our business pledge!

What is a CEO?

It is a business or non-profit organization that wants to commit to being civically engaged, either through active participation in the local community or by helping to broaden public and employee civic awareness.

Why your business will benefit from committing to our civic engagement pledge:

- It will assist in recruiting younger employees who have been shown to care about the civic health of their companies.
- You will boost employee morale by showing your employees that you care about their lives and involvement in the community outside of the workplace.
- You will build lasting partnerships by showing local stakeholders that your business is an active member in its community.
- It will provide marketing opportunities and positive media attention for your business.
- You will help improve the community around you!

Business Pledge

Email our non-partisan "Civics 101" document to staff and/or customers;

Note dates of elections in the office and/or in newsletters;

Give employees time off to vote on Election Days, if their schedules don't allow for before- or after-hours voting;

Announce your commitment to civic engagement via email and social media;

Give employees time to volunteer in the community each year;

Email or post a polling place look-up tool for employees.

When you become a CEO, you will receive access to our CEO Toolkit which includes:

- Our "Civics 101" document and other educational videos and handouts;
- Sample social media posts for Facebook, Instagram, and Twitter;
- A CEO badge for your email signature and/or website;
- A printable certificate from the Office of the Secretary of the State certifying your commitment to civic engagement.

AUGUST POSTS TO SHARE

Dear CEO,

Connecticut holds its primary elections this month! And we're asking your help to ensure voters are aware of important election related dates and information.

For the month of August, we've added many social media graphics and sample text regarding early voting and Primary Day itself. And don't worry, we've kept all the accessible voting posts from last month in case you want to include a few of those helpful messages as well.

Please help spread the word that if you have registered with a party holding a primary, you can vote in the August 13 primary. Key messages around early voting include:

1. Early voting is August 5 - 11 and is completely in person
2. Each town has at least one early voting location (not your normal polling place), and you can find out where it is at MyVote.CT.gov
3. Early voting hours are 10am to 6pm. Except the Tuesday and Thursday before Election Day when they are extended, 8am to 8pm

Early voting is a big benefit to voters who want to vote in person but can't vote or are unsure whether they can vote on Election Day. It offers seven days to vote before the primary, including a full weekend and evenings. Let's be sure all voters know about this great convenience!

Connecticut Secretary of the State

Screenshot of the virtual meeting Secretary Thomas held with CEOs in December 2024 to review the year, discuss the upcoming legislative session, and hear feedback, suggestions, and concerns from CEOs.

The screenshot shows a Zoom meeting interface. At the top, the meeting title is "Secretary Stephaine Thomas's sci". The meeting participants are listed as Arienne Orozco, Secretary Stephaine Thom..., Marion Griffin, Angella Francis, Keelin Mathews - Main..., and Ashley Gaudio. The main content is a slide with an orange header and a white body. The slide title is "How You've Helped" in blue text. Below the title is a bulleted list of contributions. In the bottom left corner of the slide is the logo of the Office of the Connecticut Secretary of the State.

How You've Helped

- Alerting Public about Five Elections
- Preventing the Spread of Mis/Dis-information
- Raising Civic Awareness
- Contributed to Success of Early Voting

📧 A message from B Local Connecticut, on behalf of the CT Secretary of the State!
Please share with your organization, where possible.

"We're thrilled to share that over half a million voters have already cast their ballots during early voting here in Connecticut! This incredible milestone wouldn't be possible without our collective effort to educate and empower our communities—thank you for playing your part!

To ensure every eligible voter is ready and informed, we're excited to share three key resources:

- ◆ 2024 Non-Partisan Voter Guide
Connecticut's first-ever comprehensive guide includes a list of candidates (with links to their websites), critical deadlines, and detailed voting instructions. It's everything you need to feel confident at the polls!
Click here: <https://lnkd.in/dHEbU4uN>
- ◆ Early Voting PSA
Make sure everyone knows about weekend voting! With polls open Saturday and Sunday, more people have the chance to make their voices heard, even with weekday commitments. Please share this PSA to spread the word.
